1.6 Research Assistant Professor

Institution	Regional Research Institute West Virginia University
Anticipated starting date	August 16, 2010
Information	The Regional Research Institute at West Virginia University is seeking a promising scholar with a strong commitment to interdisciplinary social science research to complement its research capacity in the area of regional analysis. The successful candidate is expected to play an important role in the Institute's ongoing projects in regional economic analysis and to pursue and participate actively in externally funded research. Expected areas of expertise and interest include some combination of societal impacts of technological or environmental change, applied spatial modeling methods such as geographic information systems, spatial econometrics, and regional economic and policy analysis. A Ph.D. in applied

	economics, geography, urban and regional planning, policy analysis, or related discipline should be obtained by the time of appointment. The ideal candidate will have an extensive background and skills in quantitative regional analysis. The Regional Research Institute is dedicated to multidisciplinary research on the economic and social development of lagging regions. Its focus is on theories and methods for studying regions, and policies for stimulating their development. On-going research projects deal with rural economic growth and job creation, environmental analysis, energy policy and technology, and methods for regional policy analysis. RRI projects have been funded, among others, by the National Science Foundation, the USDA, the Economic Development Administration, the National Energy and Technology Laboratory, the Alfred P. Sloan Foundation, and the Appalachian Regional Commission. Additional information may be obtained at www.rri.wvu.edu. This is a fixed term, 9-month position with an anticipated starting date of August 16, 2010. Research Assistant Professor appointments are typically renewed at least twice, but appointments can be extended beyond three years upon mutual agreement. Application review will begin immediately and continue until the position has been filled. Application materials include curriculum vitae, a two-page statement of research interests, goals, and objectives, and names, addresses, and contact information of at least three references. Submit these materials electronically to RRI@mail.wvu.edu. Women, minorities and members of disadvantaged groups are particularly encouraged to apply. West Virginia University is an Equal Opportunity/Affirmative Action employer.

2. Conferences/Seminars/Workshops Organized

2.1 Spatial Information Technologies for Monitoring the Deformation of Large-Scale Man-made Linear Features, Chinese University of Hong Kong, Jan 11-12, 2010

The Chinese University of Hong Kong
Institute of Space and Earth Information Science

- International Workshop - 國際研討會 -

Spatial Information Technologies for Monitoring the Deformation of Large-Scale Man-made Linear Features

監測大型人工綫狀地物形變的空間信息技術

The Chinese University of Hong Kong Jan 11-12, 2010

Keynote Speakers:

Professor Fabio Rocca,
the Politecnico di Milano, Italy.

Professor Jingnan Liu,
Wuhan University, China.

This workshop will serve as an open forum to exchange ideas with latest development in this area. We are now inviting research papers on Applications of InSAR, LiDAR, GPS and others related to the deformation monitoring of the following large-scale man-made linear features:

- High-speed highway/railways
- Subways and urban beltway systems
- Dams and dykes of reservoirs, great lakes and rivers
- Oil/gas pipelines
- Others

Keynote Speeches:

1. "Spaceborne SAR's impact of wavelength and scan modes on ground motion studies," by Professor Fabio Rocca, the Politecnico di Milano, Italy.
2. "The Progress in Deformation Monitoring of Dams, Bridges and Power Lines," by Professor Jingnan Liu, Wuhan University, China.

Other Topics:

3. "Theoretical background of microwave remote sensing for subsidence measurements."
4. "Subsidence measurement at linear infrastructure elements."
5. "Precise measurement of urban subsidence."
6. "Subsidence measurement at key infrastructure elements."

Registration Fee
Pre-Registration HK$1000 (~US$130)
[Please fill the following information and return the registration form on or before December 15, 2009]
Onsite and late-Registration HK$1200 (~US$150)
[Only CASR will be accepted for onsite registration; no exchange of currency can be provided onsite]
Student HK$600 (~US$80)
[Please submit copy of your student card together with the registration form]

3.3 Geoinformatics 2011 conference site call for proposal

Due Date	April 22, 2010
Information	The conference is normally held between late spring and summer months, and has a tradition of rotating between Asia and North America. However, we encourage proposal submissions from all continents. The previous conference Geoinformatics-2009 was held in Fairfax, Virginia, USA (Washington D.C. Metropolitan Area, August 12-14, 2009). This year's Geoinformatics-2010 will be held in Beijing, China (June 18-20, 2010). In general, the conference organizer needs to take the financial responsibility. Previous Geoinformatics conferences have either been self-sufficient or run some surplus through conference registrations and various sponsorships. In addition to conference site rentals, the conference organizer is responsible for securing at least one keynote speaker and hosting a dinner reception. Optionally, conference organizer may also offer a field trip and publishing a conference proceeding. The proposal should be 3 pages or less and include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • proposed conference site and a brief description of the site • a theme with two or three intended sessions that reflect the theme • an organization structure with a minimum of program and local arrangement committee (there should be at least one representative from CPGIS) • possible conference dates with at least two time slots • accommodations and price range, any incentives in group discount travel/lodging • a budget and methods of balancing the budget (e.g., Proposed registration fee, $1000 contribution to CPGIS, cash awards to student paper competition winners, discount to CPGIS members, sponsors, etc.) • other potential benefits of holding the conference at the proposed location and on the proposed dates (e.g., petty packing an additional conference or being petty-packed with a major conference, exhibits, social events) • a statement acknowledging that Geoinformatics conference is mainly sponsored by CPGIS
